I'm currently trying to connect this project to my access db so I can export a file. However every tutorial I found asks me to use SqlConnection conn = new SqlConnection(ConfigurationManager.ConnectionStrings["ConnectionStringName"].ConnectionString); Instead of this: System.Data.SqlClient.SqlConnection conn = new System.Data.SqlClient.SqlConnection(ConfigurationManager.ConnectionStrings["ConnectionStringName"].ConnectionString); Which is where I am now. I'm sorry if this is a dumb question but I'm at a loss here. EDIT: I'm currently getting the following error: a type or namespace name could not be found SqlConnection conn = new SqlConnection(ConfigurationManager.ConnectionStrings["ConnectionStringName"].ConnectionString); DataSet ds = new DataSet(); conn.Open(); conn.Close(); conn.Dispose(); A: Try this: SqlConnection conn = new SqlConnection(System.Configuration.ConfigurationManager.ConnectionStrings["ConnectionStringName"].ConnectionString); This invention relates to electrically operated equipment such as motors, and more particularly, to a device for testing a loaded motor. Loaded motors, such as those used in electric vehicle drive systems, are manufactured to a high degree of tolerance. However, test equipment designed to place a full load on the motor prior to assembly is generally not available. It is desirable to check the output characteristics of the motor under actual operating conditions as opposed to testing them in the unloaded condition. However, since motors are subject to failure once loaded, it is also desirable to make a test of the motor which simulates as closely as possible the stress conditions under which the motor will operate. Currently, to test a motor under actual operating conditions, it is necessary to place the completed motor in an electric vehicle drive system. This approach is inefficient, adds cost, and is not practical for the mass manufacture of motor products. One attempt to improve upon these shortcoming involves placing the motor
